Tintable Quarts and 2 ounce Monstashades will be available April 22, 2013

Lead Information: Certain Yellows and Oranges contain lead pigment which provides excellent coverage and opacity compared to lead free pigments which are transparent in nature requiring many more coats and significantly higher cost. Lead was outlawed only in house paints in 1978. For industrial and automotive finishing, lead is still permitted but is slowly being phased out as technology finds suitable replacements.

Lead only poses a health risk if dry powdered pigment becomes airborne and gets inhaled or if paint chips are ingested. Future repair work including dry sanding of the cured coating should be avoided where wet sanding will prevent airborne release of lead dust. Proper personal protection and good housekeeping should always be in practice when working with lead containing coatings. Gloves and a particulate respirator must be worn.

NOTE: Lead containing items will be replaced soon with Lead Free alternates.
